Wreck Beach. Police plan to formalize their presence with tent

THANDI FLETCHER
thandi.fletcher@metronews.ca

Vancouver nudists are up in arms over an RCMP plan to put up a police tent at Wreck Beach this summer.

Sgt. Drew Grainger of UBC RCMP said the tent will go up every day at the popular clothing-optional beach starting on the May long weekend and running until Labour Day.

Police are always present at Wreck Beach in the summer, but this year will take a "more structured approach" in a bid to increase public safety, said Grainger.

"Knowing that alcohol and drugs are going to be consumed on the beach," he said, "we have to manage that to ensure the safety and security of all beach-goers."

The plan also aims to protect naked beach-goers from voyeurs and sexual predators, which he said is an ongoing risk that often goes undetected.

A man runs through shallow water at Wreck Beach in Vancouver on Aug. 14, 2011. DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Officers will be "tolerant" of people drinking on the beach as long as it doesn't get out of hand, he said.

"It's not about enforcement," he said. "If it becomes intolerable … then we will act on that with lawful authority."

But Judy Williams, chair of the Wreck Beach Preservation Society, said she is worried putting more officers on the beach sends a message that the beach is unsafe.

"That couldn't be farther from the truth," said Williams. "The continual presence down there will not be appreciated, nor is it necessary."

For years, the close-knit community has taken on the role of self-policing, removing anyone selling hard drugs or staring at and taking pictures of nudists, she said. The only problem in need of policing she sees are Jet Skis causing sound and water pollution.

"If we need the RCMP, we call them," she said.

Some society members are launching a petition against the tent plan, she said.

The society's executive secretary Cécile Bruyninckx said police have increased their presence at the beach in previous years, but nudists have never welcomed the move.

"It was very, very annoying," she said. "It doesn't work."

She believes police are only putting up the tent because of the "alcoholic freezie" fiasco.

In February, 31-year-old Alana Thomson was charged with allegedly selling homemade freezies spiked with alcohol at the beach.

But Grainger said the decision is not related to any specific incident.

He said police have been in talks with Wreck Beach regulars who responded positively to the plan.

"We have a job to do but we still want to be a part of the community," he said.

Can't bare it

"The continual presence down there will not be appreciated, nor is it necessary."

HIV/AIDS

B.C. to introduce provincewide screening

Once labelled absurd, the idea of mass testing of adults for HIV and AIDS is now part of the routine in British Columbia, proving the province is showing the world how to control and defeat the cruel disease, says the doctor leading the program.

The B.C. government announced Monday it will become the first jurisdiction in Canada to introduce guidelines for health-care providers to encourage all adult British Columbians to get tested for HIV.

"What at one time was perceived as a crazy idea — normalizing HIV testing — today becomes a reality for all British Columbians," Dr. Julio Montaner, the director at the BC Centre for Excellence in HIV/AIDS.

The guidelines, part of an effort to diagnose those infected with HIV sooner to get them life-saving treatment, include offering adult patients HIV testing as part of the regular routine of testing adult patients.

The government decided to take the Vancouver area's four-year STOP HIV/AIDS program provincewide after discovering routine testing found at least 60 people in early and late stages of HIV who were not linked to persons, practices or groups normally associated with the virus, said Health Minister Terry Lake.

"There are an estimated 12,000 British Columbians living with HIV, and many of them, estimated to be up to 3,500, do not know that they have this infection," said Lake. THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pinprick of blood. A Grade 10 student has discovered a fast way to test for the HIV virus outside of a lab setting

vancouver@metronews.ca

It's a discovery that could save thousands of lives and potentially change the future of HIV testing across the globe, and it was thought up by a Grade 10 student at York House independent school in Vancouver.

Nicole Ticea has proved in a lab setting a new point-of-care HIV diagnosis test that can potentially be done outside of the lab with a pinprick of blood.

If it's proven to be as easy outside of the lab as it was inside the implications are huge, especially for places struggling with the disease.

"I hope it gets completed so it can be used in places such as Africa, for example, where the facilities aren't available in remote regions where you take this test, and take it into the field essentially, and there you can do the testing," said Gursev Anmole, an SFU graduate student who has been working with Ticea since October 2013.

Anmole is studying molecular biology and he knows when it comes to determining if someone has HIV or not every second counts, which is why the speed of this test is so crucial.

"Especially if you don't have to draw blood, take it back to the lab, process it and then do your experiments," he said. "I mean if you can analyze a pinprick of blood on the spot and determine whether a person has an infection or not in the early stages is important."

Ticea was away at the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair from May 11 to 17 in Los Angeles, and was unable to speak with Metro. She will also be taking her HIV test to the national stage as part of the Sanofi BioGENEius Challenge Canada in Ottawa on May 22.

Lions Gate Bridge. Police seeking witnesses after fatal cycling accident

West Vancouver police are seeking witnesses after a fatal cycling accident on the Lions Gate Bridge on Sunday afternoon.

Firefighters and paramedics were called to the scene around 12:30 p.m. following a report of a cyclist injured in a fall on the east sidewalk of the bridge.

A 52-year-old North Vancouver man was taken to hospital but later died from his injuries.

Police say the man was cycling northbound on the bridge sidewalk with his wife trailing about 70 metres behind.

The victim's wife told police her husband fell after an unidentified cyclist passed him. Another witness reported seeing the same thing.

Reports of a fall

The victim, a 52-year-old North Vancouver man, was taken to hospital but later died from his injuries.

The unidentified cyclist did not stop. He is described as a white male in his 40s, who was wearing a helmet, sunglasses, cycling clothes and had earphones in his ears.

Police are asking anyone who witnessed the accident and the unidentified cyclist to contact them.

The scent of trouble in the air ... Garbage strike hits White Rock

Fed-up White Rock city workers began a full-blown strike on Monday and stopped services including garbage and recycling pickup.

The work stoppage follows a few weeks of an overtime ban and 24-hour job action as the union CUPE Local 402-1 battles with the city over work hours, part-time employees and long-term disabilities.

"We don't take this action lightly, but we feel this is our only option at this point," CUPE Local 402-1 president Mike Guraliuk said in a statement.

On top of refusing to collect the trash, leisure services and classes have also been cancelled. Three community leisure centres have been closed.

'Wake-up call'

"We don't take this action lightly, but we feel this is our only option at this point."

CUPE Local 402-1 president Mike Guraliuk in a statement

The union hopes the strike will be a "wake-up call" for the mayor, council and city management to come to the table.

But the city maintains it has been and remains willing to bargain in good faith.

The work stoppage does not affect emergency services or the RCMP.

Go on and let your kiteboard fly high

Stretch of Spanish Banks. Vancouver lets kiteboarders launch from beach in summer

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Local kiteboarders no longer have to worry about being scolded by lifeguards — at least on one Vancouver beach.

The park board has lifted a kiteboarding ban and given participants permission to launch from an approximately 300-metre stretch on the westernmost part of Spanish Banks during the summer months.

It's a one-year pilot program to see if the kiteboarders (they stand on boards similar to wakeboards and hold a kite that can power them along the water) can co-exist peacefully with other beachgoers.

Considering the wind conditions are only ideal to launch from that location between 10 and 15 times in the hot season, kiteboarding enthusiasts are sure they will integrate seamlessly, said Chris Glazier of the Squamish Windsports Society.

"This is a big step forward," Glazier said, adding a few dozen local enthusiasts already kiteboard in Squamish or Boundary Bay.

"The one place we were prohibited was Vancouver public beaches."

Glazier is known as one of the local godfathers of the sport, which has been around for 15 years. He believes the city didn't quite understand kiteboarding when they banned it.

More than a million people of all ages kiteboard around the world, he said, and it's no more hazardous than other water activities. (Of course, you need to shell out hundreds of dollars for a board and a kite. Lessons are recommended first and are available in Squamish.)

"It's just another way to get on the water, like windsurfing, to enjoy the beautiful location we have here," he said.

During the ban, local kiteboarders would launch from city beaches in the winter when no lifeguards were around to stop them.

At first kiteboarding was known as "crazy," but the equipment has improved to the point where the average age of most recreational kiteboarders is more than 55, Squamish Windsports Society beach access director Stephen Codrington said. The city seems to have realized the participants won't disrupt the public.

"It could be a golf crowd," Codrington said.

Villagers mourn canoeists who drowned in frigid lake waters

Kootenay Kids. Search crews yet to recover three of four bodies

A sacred fire will burn for four days on the shores of a cold and deep southeastern British Columbia lake to honour the lives of four "Kootenay Kids" who died in a weekend canoe accident.

Close friends were holding a round-the-clock vigil for the woman and three men who died after their boat flipped Saturday as they returned from an outing on Slocan Lake near the mountain village of New Denver.

Lily Harmer-Taylor, 19, died despite resuscitation attempts. A recovery operation was underway Monday for 15-year-old Jule Wiltshire-Padfield, 21-year-old Hayden Kyle and 19-year-old Skye Donnet, whose bodies never surfaced.

Between 50 and 60 residents gathered to mourn on the lakeside Sunday for an emotional spiritual ceremony as the sun set behind the mountains.

The residents held hands and preformed a First Nations smudging, or cleansing ceremony, with sage and burned tobacco, said resident and friend Isaac Carter.

He said the crew had been dubbed the Kootenay Kids after the West Kootenay region where they lived.

Carter said teenage friends closest to the canoeists set candles adrift in the water and planned to go on feeding the fire under the watch of community elders.

The ceremony also included intense chanting by a Cree man and the singing of a death song by a Jewish woman in Aramaic, he added.

Carter said there was no sense in trying to find someone to blame.

"We've all done it. We live on the lake, we play on the lake. It's that one time," he said. "The weather changes here by the minute and everything went wrong at one moment and we will never know what happened. We will have to deal with that."

"Something went wrong" about 5:30 p.m. Saturday when the four were paddling about 150 metres off shore near the historic Molly Hughes mine, according to the BC Coroners Service.

Passersby noticed the group in trouble and sought help, but when emergency crews arrived they found Harmer-Taylor unconscious near the canoe. She was rushed to hospital, but could not be revived with "aggressive resuscitative events."

B.C. asks Kinder Morgan for more info on pipeline expansion

The British Columbia government has questions for Kinder Morgan about the proposed expansion of its Trans Mountain pipeline through the province.

After reviewing the company's application to the National Energy Board, the province submitted 70 requests Monday for more information on oil spill prevention and response plans on land and at sea.

"Our staff have reviewed the overall application from Kinder Morgan," Environment Minister Mary Polak said at the legislature.

Under revised federal rules, the province and hundreds of other interveners will not be allowed to directly cross-examine company experts on their testimony at the review hearings. Instead, they must submit information requests in advance.

Andrew Weaver, a climate scientist and Green MLA, submitted close to 500 questions to the panel. He's worried about marine oil spills.

"I am very concerned about the evidence used to justify Kinder Morgan's assertion that it can deal with a heavy oil spill," Weaver said.

"As we saw with the Northern Gateway hearings there simply has not been adequate research on how heavy oil behaves in a marine environment, or if it is even possible to clean it up."

The province officially opposed the Northern Gateway pipeline at federal review hearings. The panel later recommended approval, with 209 conditions.

The $5-billion expansion of the Trans Mountain line would almost triple the capacity of the pipeline linking the Alberta oil sands to Port Metro Vancouver.

When news broke the Hollywood Theatre could potentially be bought by a church, abating fears the 78-year-old single-screen theatre would be developed into a fitness centre, the Save the Hollywood Theatre Coalition felt no relief.

"What we want, and what the community wants, is what will benefit everyone in this arrangement, not just the (current) owner and the buyer, but the community at large," said Adam Abrams, spokesperson for the coalition. "I think that's what's missing with the potential arrangement the church has announced."

In addition to fears of a private organization owning the theatre and controlling the content, Abrams also hasn't heard Point Grey Community Church (PGCC) commit to maintaining the heritage of the building.

At this point he would be more comfortable with the building in public hands.

"Our ultimate goal, really, is for the city to actually be the owner of the theatre, and that's probably the most viable plan really when it comes right down to it," he said.

Sarah Kift, spokesperson for the church, said she could not speak on specific plans for the theatre as it's still in the purchase and sales agreement stage, but pointed to the church's good history as tenants of the site.

"We opened our space to as many groups as we could given our volunteer manpower and time available," she said.

"I can't really comment on the future at the Hollywood, but what I can say is we're not planning to change who we are and how we do things, and we hope to keep continuing to operate in that same community spirit if we do acquire the Hollywood."

The Save the Hollywood Theatre Coalition still hopes the city will purchase the site and use it as public theatre space.

The coalition will be producing a business plan they say outlines how this can be viable, which could come as soon as this week.

Boko Haram leader wants prisoner swap

Nigeria. Schoolgirls won't be released until detained fighters are freed: Extremist

A Nigerian Islamic extremist leader says nearly 300 abducted schoolgirls will not be seen again until the government frees his detained fighters.

A new video from Nigeria's Boko Haram terrorist network received Monday purports to show some of the girls and young women chanting Qur'anic verses in Arabic. The barefoot girls look frightened and sit huddled together wearing grey Islamic veils. Some Christians among them say they have converted to Islam.

It is the first video evidence of the girls and young women since more than 300 were kidnapped from a northeastern school on April 15.

"I swear to almighty Allah you will not see them again until you release our people that you have captured," leader Abubakar Shekau says as he cradles an assault rifle in the video.

It is not known how many suspected Boko Haram members are detained by security forces. Hundreds were killed by soldiers last month when Shekau's fighters stormed the military's main northeastern barracks in Maiduguri city, the birthplace of Boko Haram.

Fifty-three schoolgirls have escaped by themselves and 276 are missing, police say. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 14 migrants dead after boat sinks

A boat crowded with migrants sank Monday in the Mediterranean just beyond Libya's territorial waters, leaving at least 14 people dead, said the Italian navy, which helped rescue more than 200 survivors.

Nationalities of the survivors and dead hadn't yet been determined. The sinking occurred some 160 kilometres south of the tiny Sicilian island of Lampedusa.

Turkey ordered to pay Cyprus $123M

Europe's top human rights court in its largest-ever judgment ordered Turkey on Monday to pay $123 million to Cyprus for its 1974 invasion and the island's subsequent division.

The decision from the European Court of Human Rights said that Turkey must pay damages to relatives of those missing in the operations and "the enclaved Greek-Cypriot residents of the Karpas peninsula."

Drag queen. European opinion divided after Austrian victory at music competition

Austrian Singer Conchita Wurst performs during the final of the Eurovision Song Contest in Copenhagen, Denmark, on Saturday. FRANK AUGSTEIN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's the beard that divided a continent. The victory of whiskered drag queen Conchita Wurst in the Eurovision Song Contest had celebrities from Nigella Lawson to Russell Brand posting bearded selfies on the Internet in tribute — and Russian men snapping clean-shaven pictures in protest.

For millions of viewers, the annual Eurovision show is a cheesy music competition renowned for its camp, kitsch and electro beats. But the nation-based contest is also a potent mix of patriotism and politics in bubblegum wrapping.

Wurst's win has exposed a divide between Europe's progressives and conservatives that British tabloid The Sun cheekily described Monday as the "Furred World War."

The statuesque brunette with the soaring voice and full dark beard called her first-place finish in Saturday's contest a victory for tolerance and respect. Austrian President Heinz Fischer said it was "not just a victory for Austria, but above all for diversity and tolerance in Europe."

But Russian Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Rogozin tweeted that Eurovision had shown the true face of European integration: "a bearded girl." On social media, a variety of Russian men posted shaving-foam selfies in opposition to the Austrian's victory.

Pro-Kremlin legislator Olga Batalina — deputy head of the family and maternity issues committee of the lower house of Russia's parliament — said Wurst's victory showed "it's not enough to have a talent and a good voice to win Eurovision; you also need to reject your nature, identity and traditions." She chalked the win up to "aggressive and persistent" gay propaganda.

That may sound like a lot of rhetoric over a talent show, but Eurovision has always been more than a simple singing contest. Founded in 1956, the competition pits European nations against each other in pursuit of pop music glory.

But it is more generally loved, and mocked, for its parade of cheesy tunes from quirky performers. The live telecast is watched by some 180 million people and has a particularly strong gay following. It also faces perennial accusations of regional block-voting and geopolitical games.

During Saturday's final in Copenhagen, Russia was loudly booed by the audience each time its act — teenage twins Anastasia and Maria Tolmachevy — won points. Russia, which came seventh, got most of its support from neighbours, and gave its maximum points to Armenia, Azerbaijan and Belarus, all former Soviet republics.

Eurovision has helped launch the careers of stars including Sweden's ABBA — victors in 1974 — and Canadian Celine Dion, who won for Switzerland in 1988.

East Ukraine: Autonomy declared by pro-Russians

Pro-Moscow insurgents in eastern Ukraine declared independence Monday and sought to join Russia, undermining Ukraine's May 25 presidential election, strengthening the Kremlin's hand and putting pressure on Kyiv to hold talks with the separatists.

Russia signalled it has no intention of subsuming eastern Ukraine the way it annexed Crimea in March. Instead, Moscow is pushing to include eastern regions in negotiations on Ukraine's future — suggesting that Russia prefers a political, not military, solution to its worst standoff with the West since the Cold War.

Such talks are central to a potential path toward peace outlined Monday by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. The plan laid out by Swiss President Didier Burkhalter calls on all sides to refrain from violence and urges immediate amnesty, talks on decentralization and the status of the Russian language.

That's a key complaint of the armed insurgents who have seized power in eastern regions and clashed with government troops and police. But it's up to the Ukrainian government to take the next step.

Acting Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk pledged Monday to hold talks with those in Ukraine's east. But he gave no specifics and did not address Sunday's vote or the declarations of independence by the Donetsk and Luhansk regions.

With a national presidential election scheduled in 13 days, the regions of Donetsk and Luhansk declared independence Monday, and those in Donetsk even asked to join neighbouring Russia. The sprawling areas along Russia's border, home to about 6.6 million people, form Ukraine's industrial heartland.

The interim government in Kyiv had been hoping the presidential vote would unify the country behind a new, democratically chosen leadership. Ukraine's crisis could grow worse if regions start rejecting the presidential vote. Dozens have been reported killed since Ukrainian forces began trying to retake some eastern cities.

Hotel owner says he's owed millions for housing evacuees

Flood of 2011. Last of evacuees left Manitoba hotel in November but bills still outstanding

A Manitoba hotel owner says he has been forced to lay off more than 50 employees, close his hotel and put it up for sale because Ottawa owes him $3 million in unpaid bills.

Mike Bruneau, who owns Misty Lake Lodge in Gimli, says he's owed the money for feeding and housing dozens of aboriginal people who were displaced by the 2011 flood. Bruneau was paid a portion of the cash but says he is owed more. Bruneau says he also needs to be reimbursed for damage to the hotel and interest on the debt.

"They were in my hotel for 2 1/2 years," he said Monday. "(The rooms) aren't rentable. I wanted them to pay my bills, so I could fix the hotel up. They didn't pay my bills, so I couldn't go back to doing weddings and conferences, the kind of stuff I used to do.

Bruneau said he got an $8-million offer to sell four years ago. He isn't expecting to get that much now.

The Manitoba Association of Native Firefighters had been given millions to care for evacuees, but Bruneau said the group stopped paying him when he accused it publicly of squandering money.

Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada is auditing the association's handling of the prolonged evacuation and the Red Cross is now responsible for the long-term care of about 2,000 evacuees.

Pregnant drivers. Risk of car crashes jumps during 2nd trimester, study finds

Pregnant women who drive appear to be at a significantly higher risk of being in a serious car crash during the second trimester of their pregnancies, a new study suggests.

The researchers, who believe fatigue and sleep disruption are probably responsible, say the increase in risk is similar to what is seen for people who suffer from sleep apnea.

The authors of the study, published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, said they aren't trying to suggest pregnant women stop driving. In fact, they noted that men of a similar age have even higher rates of accidents than pregnant women do, so the answer is not turning over the keys to one's husband, or male partner.

But pregnant women should be aware of the elevated risk, and ensure that they drive with more caution, Redelmeier said: Stop at every stop sign, use indicator lights to signal turns, wear seat belts at all times.

Human rights crisis.
UN official slams Canada's record on First Nations

A UN rapporteur is at a loss to explain how a prosperous and sophisticated country like Canada has come to have on its hands a First Nations human-rights problem that has reached "crisis proportions."

James Anaya's report picks a fight with the federal government on several fronts — education, energy projects on reserves and missing or murdered aboriginal women, to name a few — and is sure to amplify tensions between Canada's First Nations and a federal government they so thoroughly distrust.

"It is difficult to reconcile Canada's well-developed legal framework and general prosperity with the human-rights problems faced by indigenous peoples in Canada that have reached crisis proportions in many respects," writes Anaya, the UN's special rapporteur on indigenous rights.

"Moreover, the relationship between the federal government and indigenous peoples is strained, perhaps even more so than when the previous special rapporteur visited Canada in 2003."

Aboriginal Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt acknowledged more work needs to be done, but highlighted steps the government has taken to give First Nations access to housing, education and matrimonial rights.

"Our government is proud of the effective and incremental steps taken in partnership with aboriginal communities. We are committed to continuing to work with our partners to make significant progress in improving the lives of aboriginal people in Canada," Valcourt said in a statement.

Quanto's Law

PM pushes tough punishment for harming cop dogs

Prime Minister Stephen Harper was in Edmonton on Monday to meet with police canine units and to announce the introduction of new legislation dubbed Quanto's Law.

The proposed legislation calls for serious consequences for anyone who harms police, service and Canadian Armed Forces animals.

Quanto was an Edmonton police service dog who was stabbed to death while trying to apprehend a fleeing suspect last October.

EBay whale gets positively fed back into the sea

The carcass of a sperm whale that a Newfoundland town tried to sell on eBay has been washed out to sea.

A combination of strong winds and a high tide refloated the remains late Saturday near Cape St. George.

Mayor Peter Fenwick says the 12-metre carcass was last seen floating away in an easterly direction.

Last week, the town listed the beached carcass on the online auction site, but eBay officials pulled the ad. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'It's not just a building anymore. It's a spirit'

Lac-Mégantic. Quebec town plans to rebuild the Musi-Café, destroyed in 2013's train disaster, as partly a gathering place, partly a memorial

Time has passed in Lac-Mégantic, but the anxiety has not.

Ten months after the train disaster that killed 47 people in the eastern Quebec town, residents should be gearing up for a bustling tourist season.

Instead, they are still finding their feet after the tragedy and hoping that a construction project begun last week will return some spirit to a town that has known only ghosts since July 6, 2013, when a runaway train loaded with crude oil jumped the tracks and wiped out a swath of the downtown.

The project that is being unveiled Tuesday — the reconstruction of the Musi-Café, a popular local bar — is both emotional and practical.

Practical because the destruction of the rallying point for local revellers, karaoke singers and visiting musical acts has left Lac-Mégantic without a nightlife or place to celebrate moments of joy.

It is charged with emotion because the bar that was located next to the train tracks on the main downtown strip was where about 30 of the 47 victims were enjoying drinks, music and friends when the train flipped, caught fire and exploded.

Just a few things were recovered from the tragedy: a German beer sign, a few beer kegs, a metal drink shaker and a patio umbrella that had been stored in the bar's basement. But the most touching item bar owner Yannick Gagné now has in his possession is the charred steel box that held cash, coins, keys and deposit slips signed by staff, three of whom died that night.

It was thought to have been incinerated in the fires, but was discovered two months ago in debris around the town's former library, down the street from the Musi-Café's former site.

"They put it aside and when they opened it three weeks or one month later, they realized there was too much money for it to belong to the library and there were special objects inside like keys, because I always kept the keys inside," Gagné told Torstar News Service on Monday.

These items, along with some floor planks and tiles that survived the inferno, will make up part of a memorial that will adorn the new bar when it opens in August or September. It will honour all the townsfolk who died that morning, but especially the many whose last moments were inside the bar.

The new Musi-Café will be just 6,000 square feet of commercial space located at the end of Lac-Mégantic's relocated downtown strip, but it is nevertheless an "overwhelming project," said Marc Bovet, head of Bone Structure, the Quebec firm handling the construction.

"It's not just a building anymore," he said. "It's a spirit.

"Yannick has been designated, whether he wanted it or not ... as being the leader of rebuilding this community, and it doesn't all come with bricks and mortar."

Railway, three people face charges

The Crown prosecutor's office in Quebec says three people and a train company will face criminal negligence charges stemming from the railway disaster that killed 47 in Lac-Mégantic, Que., last summer.

The prosecutor's office says 47 counts of criminal negligence have been filed against Thomas Harding, Jean Demaitre and Richard Labrie as well as the Montreal, Maine and Atlantic Railway Ltd., the defunct railway at the heart of the disaster. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Condoms not to be used in prostitution cases: NYPD

New policy. Police don't want to give condoms a bad rap while fighting crime

The New York Police Department will no longer confiscate unused condoms from suspected sex workers to be used as evidence of prostitution, ending a long-standing practice that had been criticized by civil rights groups for undermining efforts to combat AIDS and other sexually transmitted infections.

Under the new policy announced Monday, officers may continue to seize condoms as evidence in sex-trafficking and promotion of prostitution cases, but they will not use them in support of prostitution cases. Critics had said the previous policy amounted to police harassment.

"The NYPD heard from community health advocates and took a serious look at making changes to our current policy as it relates to our broader public safety mission," Police Commissioner William Bratton said.

For decades, police in New York and elsewhere had confiscated condoms from sex work suspects ostensibly for them to be used as evidence in criminal trials.

"A policy that inhibits people from safe sex is a mistake and dangerous," Mayor Bill de Blasio said Monday. "And there are a number of ways you can go about putting together evidence" without condoms, he said.

Civil rights groups and advocates for sex workers and gay, lesbian and transgender young people commended the department's new policy, but want a ban on the use of condoms as evidence in sex trafficking and promotion of prostitution cases too.

A 2010 study by the city's Department of Health surveyed more than 60 sex workers and found that more than half had condoms confiscated by police. Nearly a third said they had at times not carried condoms because they feared getting into trouble.

Two years later, the group Human Rights Watch interviewed 197 sex workers in New York, Washington, Los Angeles and San Francisco and found that many limited the number of condoms they carried or went without because they feared police attention.

The report concluded that transgender teens, street-level sex workers and immigrants were especially targeted because of their appearance or behaviour.

Measures to abolish the practice across New York state have been introduced in the legislature for nearly two decades and last year passed the assembly. Similar legislation has been introduced in California. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Psychiatrist: Anxiety disorder may have led to Oscar Pistorius killing girlfriend

Oscar Pistorius has an anxiety disorder that may have contributed to the fatal shooting of his girlfriend, an expert testified at his murder trial Monday, prompting the chief prosecutor to say the double-amputee Olympian should be placed under psychiatric observation.

The judge has not yet ruled on prosecutor Gerrie Nel's application that the court considers a period of mental evaluation for the runner.

Dr. Merryll Vorster, a psychiatrist called by the defence, testified that a series of events in Pistorius's turbulent life, including the amputation of his lower legs as a baby, his parents' divorce, his late mother's habit of sleeping with a gun under her pillow and his own fear of violent crime contributed to his "increasing stress."

Vorster said Pistorius's anxiety and his physical disability may have caused him to act differently from other people when he shot four times through a toilet stall door, killing girlfriend Reeva Steenkamp. Pistorius, 27, claims he mistook Steenkamp for an intruder, but prosecutors say he killed her after an argument and shot in anger, not fear.

Pistorius's chief lawyer Barry Roux said at the start of defence-led testimony that the double amputee's vulnerability and disability was at the centre of his case. But prosecutor Nel questioned whether Pistorius was merely trying one of a number of defences for shooting his girlfriend. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ads. Frozen food makers hope to warm consumers up to products with campaign

Frozen food makers planned to launch their first national TV ad in the U.S. in defence of their products on Tuesday as in a fight to boost slipping sales.

The ad will include the tag line "Frozen: How Fresh Stays Fresh," and is intended to address negative misconceptions people have about frozen foods.

The push comes as frozen food sales have been hurt by consumers moving to food they feel is fresh or natural.

The push is being funded by companies including General Mills, H.J. Heinz, Jasper Wyman & Son, Kellogg, Lakeside Foods, the Schwan Food Co. and Seneca Foods.

Prosthetic hands get a modern update

DEKA Arm System.

The latest twist on the 1912 invention lets amputees open envelopes, pick up eggs

Modern life is quickly becoming stranger, and for amputees, better than science fiction.

Take the revolutionary new prosthetic limb that looks, and is, completely cutting edge.

The limb is called the DEKA Arm System — and it was developed in New Hampshire by serial inventor/genius Dean Kamen and his team. The thing even has fingernails.

Technology for prosthetic hands hasn't had too many radical advances. Until now, most have been variations on the theme of the 1912 invention of the clasping hook prosthetic.

The DEKA represents a mind-boggling advancement.

Wireless sensors placed under the foot of the user allow them to control six different grips. And that means, as you'll see in the demonstration (scan the Metro AR photo to see), that a user with one hand can now perform previously difficult tasks like opening an envelope.

The impetus for the invention was a DARPA (Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency) initiative called The Revolutionizing Prosthetics Program. Its goal is "so service members with arm loss may one day have the option of choosing to return to duty. Additionally, the dexterous hand capabilities developed under the program have already been applied to small robotic systems used in manipulating unexploded ordnance, thus keeping soldiers out of situations that have led to limb loss."

The new system has just been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, meaning that it can be manufactured and sold. It's powerful enough to hold a hand drill, while sensitive enough to allow a user to pick up items as delicate as eggs. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

ME TARZAN, YOU BREADWINNER

SHE SAYS

Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

Earlier this month, Fox News hosted a discussion about whether it's problematic for a woman to make more money than her husband. Apparently, segment host Clayton Morris believes female breadwinners are causing serious martial issues among heterosexual couples.

"Isn't there some sort of biological, innate need for men to be the caveman?" he asked a panel of guests.

A genuinely concerned Morris then went on to argue that men should be responsible for "going out and bringing home the dinner" and it is emasculating for a husband to be out-earned by his wife.

I understand that no one has ever accused the talking heads at Fox of being overly feminist, but this news segment seemed particularly chauvinistic, even for them.

It's hard to believe that people are still clinging to these outdated gender roles. Hosting a televised debate about how "Alpha women" are undermining their husbands and contributing to some sort of imagined societal breakdown seems like something that might have happened in 1954, not 2014.

Are we really supposed to believe that modern men are so fragile and insecure? A 2013 Pew Research Study found that almost a quarter of married mothers in the U.S. earn more than their husbands, which means there must be a lot of bruised male egos out there, according to Morris's caveman logic.

In my opinion, women who are the primary income earners in a relationship are about as "problematic" as husbands who change diapers or do the laundry.

Children are incredibly draining on all of your resources — time, energy and definitely money — and nobody should be criticized for contributing to the family finances.

A man's self-esteem might be closely linked to his career, but so is mine.

The women I know are far more likely to find self-fulfillment by succeeding in a lucrative career than perfecting their ability to bake a cake or be a "good wife" in the traditional, Fox News kind of way.

Raising a family is a joint effort. Married partners are playing on the same team, and men and women shouldn't be competing over their paycheques.

There are so many different types of households, and expecting the partner with the most testosterone to fulfil the role of "provider" at all times is a completely archaic notion.

Female breadwinners aren't an issue; sexist news anchors who broadcast their patriarchal opinions and disapprove of women with high-paying jobs are the real problem in this scenario.

Men should be proud to be coupled up with a successful partner, not worrying about how their wife's salary impacts their own masculine identity.

WE ACT:
CANADA DOES GOOD

Stories from hospital hallways

Each month, we profile a Canadian who's up to a whole lot of good. Here's one we'd like you to meet:

Who: Jackie Kinder, community volunteer with Childcan, London.
What: Fundraising and organizing community events to help support the families of young people diagnosed with cancer.
Why: To provide the families with the financial and community support they need to focus on their children.

Jackie met 14-year-old Stephanie Simmons, a three-time brain-tumour survivor, when she began volunteering with Childcan. "She's my hero," says Jackie. "Knowing what she went through and knowing that through it all she was so brave, so concerned with helping other children, that's what hooked me." Since then, Jackie has taken a leading role fundraising for Childcan, participating in the Inside Ride cycling event and the National Day of Action for kids with cancer at the CN Tower.

Jackie Kinder, right, with Stephanie Simmons, a three-time brain tumour survivor. CONTRIBUTED

What motivated you to get involved with families dealing with childhood cancer?
"You don't leave a child alone in the hospital — you're there for the long haul, and it's incredibly demanding on the family. When families come into the hospital, Childcan has people there right away to offer support. We bring them into the Childcan family, and I fundraise to help with gas, cafeteria vouchers, parking and credit-card bills. The financial hardships are major — but help is always there."

You've spent your life working with young people, first as a teacher and now as a volunteer. What advice do you have for them?
"Take the time to find and develop your passion for a cause. I've met some wonderful volunteers, and they are all happier for the work they do. They've learned that happiness doesn't mean all that you own — it's about giving back to other people. It's something I learned from Stephanie: it's the feeling you get doing something worthwhile for other people in your community that keeps us going."

Every year, the city of Hamburg celebrates its harbour's birthday with a massive bash along the Elbe. Drawing more than one million people, the harbour party features vessel parades, something called a tugboat ballet and the much more humble-sounding dragon boat race.

But this is a party, after all. And what party is complete without music? Enter the enormous cruise ship MSC Magnifica — launched from this very harbour in 2010 — and its bone-rattling, horn-fired rendition of Seven Nation Army.

Indie musical landscape. Singer Annie Clark comes into her own, creating a live show unlike any other St. Vincent concert

Just because St. Vincent's summer itinerary is packed with more than a dozen festival dates on four continents doesn't mean that Annie Clark is scaling back the theatrics of the St. Vincent concert experience.

The singer and guitarist will still force herself down a giant set of pink stairs, writhe around against a storm of strobe lights and eventually command the procession, purposefully poised like a cross, from an oversized pink throne.

"We've worked really hard on this strange fever dream of a show, bringing it to life," says Clark, "so it's important that people get the whole experience, even if it's at a festival."

That "strange fever dream of a show," along with the self-titled fifth St. Vincent album, may be the most definitive statement from any artist this year. From Clark's fat guitar leads to her strange and simple lyrics — any of which can Wbe pulled out to illustrate what St. Vincent is all about in 2014 — it feels like the artist has truly discovered her identity.

"I'll always be evolving and be restless and wanting to move violently into the future," says Clark of arriving at something that could be considered iconic, "but I was reading Miles Davis's autobiography and it was saying how the hardest thing about being a musician is to sound like yourself. I can hear one note of Miles or Coltrane and know that it's them and it's the world that they have painstakingly created to be unmistakable. I just thought that this record for me was something where I had successfully created a landscape that was my own."

This landscape includes Clark's stylized lavender/gray old lady hair, of which she says: "Everyone is really obsessed with being young and youth culture and this sort of erroneous idea that things are the best when you are young, and I am young, but I wanted to see what it would look like to go in the opposite direction." And this landscape also includes conscious choreography in the live show, the likes of which hasn't been seen on a St. Vincent tour before. Clark says she was inspired by doing an album and tour with David Byrne, whose live show included an eight-piece brass band moving around the stage and creating what Clark says was "this whole other level of drama and whimsy and symbolic subconscious meaning that the audience can pick up on."

"I wanted to create a real experience for people, especially in this day and age where we are kind of obsessed with capturing moments at the expense of living them," she says. "I wanted to encourage people as much as possible to be present and be so engrossed in the show that they are not tempted to check their text messages."

St. Vincent will be the musical guest on the season finale of Saturday Night Live this weekend.

Her

Director. Spike Jonze

Stars. Joaquin Phoenix, Scarlett Johansson

Most sci-fi films make a human/machine love connection seem perverse or at least far out, yet Spike Jonze's Her treats it as a mild novelty.

Set about five years in the future in techno-fabulous L.A., it's nominally a simple sci-fi romance of a man, played by Joaquin Phoenix, falling in love with a machine, voiced by Scarlett Johansson.

There's much more going on than this, of course, as you'd expect from the director who brought us the layered head-spinners Being John Malkovich, Adaptation and Where the Wild Things Are. The film's subliminal message is that the human touch is in danger of being replaced with an "on" switch.

Phoenix and Johansson make for a completely convincing couple. Jonzesidesteps sniggers, shivers and convention, putting in plot twiststhat are at once shocking and completely logical.

He's really interested in the difficulty of making and maintaining emotional and intellectual ties, no matter whether the heart is made of flesh or silicon.

Extras include several making-of featurettes.

Community doesn't make the cut for a sixth season

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Community's cast of comedians. HANDOUT

The drama behind the scenes on beleaguered NBC sitcom Community was always nearly as compelling as the jokes onscreen. Perennially low-rated, Community faced cancellation every year for its five seasons. Now the scrappy little show that could finally can't: NBC gave it the axe last week.

The show's obsessive fans won't give up at such a minor setback, however. Fans have already begun petitioning production company Sony to shop Community to other networks.

But the plan won't work unless the most important fan of all, creator/showrunner Dan Harmon, is onboard, and he sounds decidedly unenthused.

"[W]hen Sony called me on Friday with the news, there was brief discussion at the end of the call about the concept of the show living elsewhere, and I was definitely in the 'eh' column," he writes on his blog.

"For a million reasons, some selfish, some creative, one logistic, five sexual, three racist (in a good way) and, oddly, nine isometric."

Ben's gambling Garners negative attention from Jennifer

Ben Affleck is developing quite a reputation in Las Vegas, with several casinos accusing the Argo star of card counting — and his wife, Jennifer Garner, is less than thrilled, according to Star magazine. "Jen demanded to go to Vegas with Ben because she doesn't trust him, and he felt like he had no choice but to take her," a source says of the couple's visit last month that didn't end well for Affleck. "But after their dinners there each night, she would go back to their suite while Ben would stay out all night playing cards, betting thousands of dollars at a time. It makes Jen so mad, but once Ben starts gambling he can't stop." Until the casino intervenes, at least. And the source claims that when Affleck was busted by the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino, Garner was by his side: "She looked totally bored and annoyed," the source says.

Solange Knowles GETTY IMAGES

She may be young, but she's ready to throw down

In an exclusive video from TMZ.com, you can see Beyoncé's sister, Solange Knowles, viciously attacking Jay-Z in an elevator after the Met Ball. A man who appears to be Jay Z's bodyguard holds the swinging and kicking Knowles back, but she makes contact with the Hova at least three times. For her part, Beyoncé just kind of stands there.

The video was taken by a surveillance camera in the elevator of the Standard Hotel after the big gala on May 4th during an after party. As TMZ.com points out, the bodyguard stops the elevator at one point, probably in hopes of keeping this private affair private.

Too late.

Hoop screams: Bieber gets booed at basketball game

Justin Bieber isn't faring well in the court of public opinion, if his attendance at a Los Angeles Clippers game Sunday is any indication. The troubled Canadian pop star showed up court-side with his mother, Pattie Mallette, to celebrate Mother's Day watching game four of the NBA playoffs, and the other fans in attendance apparently didn't think that was a great idea, according to E! News. "The entire place booed him when Staples Center cameras put him on the Jumbotron," a source says.

Looks can be deceiving — even when it comes to boredom

Why do we get bored?
One professor weighs in

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News in New York City

Researchers believe there are five types of boredom. ISTOCK

You might think it's your fault you're dozing off in a classroom or office, but that's not always the case.

There are clear categories of boredom triggered by one's environment, says pioneering researcher Dr. Thomas Goetz from the University of Konstanz in Germany (see sidebar).

What is the most common misconception about boredom?
It's important to recognize the different types, and clearly define the differences.

You say apathetic boredom is the worst — how bad can it get?
The problem is that it makes every experience negative and the potential for arousal is low. You can't do anything against this state and it can become a big problem related to depression.

What puts us at risk?
Some people tend to a specific state but only to a small degree; each experience is based on situations. It's important that people recognize the forms. Often the problem is a lack of freedom, such as at school. Teachers should be aware and try to find individualized methods that give students choice.

Is there a risk that teaching boredom could cause more boredom?
There is an argument from anxiety research that awareness increases the problem, but in this case it is about knowing and realizing, and this goes hand in hand with resolving it.

What follow-up research is needed?
We didn't measure the effects. We need diagnostic instruments to show the experiences of boredom.

Types of boredom

Here are the various categories.

- Indifferent boredom. A relaxing, possibly positive type – "a general indifference to, and withdrawal from, the external world."
- Calibrating boredom. Wandering thoughts — "general openness to behaviours aimed at changing the situation."
- Searching boredom. "Actively seeking out specific ways of minimizing feelings of boredom."
- Reactant boredom. Causes sufferers "to leave the boredom-inducing situation and avoid those responsible for this situation (e.g., teachers)."
- Apathetic boredom. Impossible to break from this mode – "dangerous, similar to depression."

You can transform the future for brain tumour patients and survivors.

Mary had a little lamb

NUTRI-BITES
Theresa Albert
DHN, RNCP
myfriendinfood.com

Mary had a little lamb, because the meat is moist and rich and satisfying, and a little lamb is all you need. Bahaha. OK, that's enough.

Delicious lamb is raised in Canada and is generally a local, grass-fed food.

That said, if you don't check the label, you are more than likely enjoying an imported product from New Zealand.

Lamb leg or rump can be a little higher in fat and calories but it has all of the benefits of other animal meats like protein, B12 and zinc.

Lamb chops are generally a quick-cooking, leaner option and a nice change.

There is a slightly gamey flavour to lamb that can be an acquired taste but chops are generally milder. For newbies, sweet flavours like mint or raspberry are great compliments to minimize the grassiness.

The trick for cooking lamb chops is to be sure to preheat the grill to a very high heat but to only cook each chop for three or four minutes per side.

The protein is delicate and the meat is thin, so chops don't need much attention to be tender and delicious.

Let the chops rest for a few minutes before serving so that all of the juices remain within the meat.

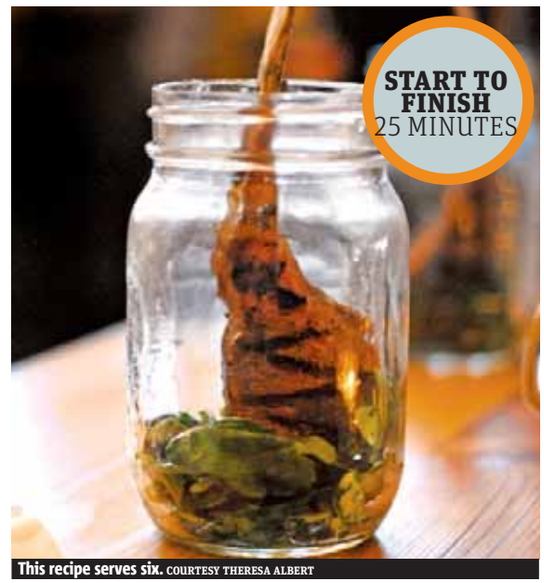
FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less



This recipe serves six. COURTESY THERESA ALBERT

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp raspberry vinegar
- 1 tbsp Dijon mustard
- 1 tbsp soy sauce
- 2 tsp fresh rosemary (minced) or 1/2 tsp dried
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup water
- 12 cups mixed greens
- 8 lamb chops

1. In large shallow dish, whisk vinegar, mustard, soy sauce, rosemary, oil and garlic. Spoon half into a bowl and thin with water to make dressing.

2. Add lamb chop in single layer, turning to coat well. Cover and marinate on counter for 10-20 minutes or up to 24 hours covered in fridge, turning occasionally.

3. Discarding marinade, place chops on greased grill over medium-high heat; cook for about 5 minutes per side for medium rare or to desired doneness. Let rest or place into jars as below immediately to keep moist and warm.

4. For an interesting presentation, place salad greens in mason jars and drizzle dressing. THERESA ALBERT @THERESAALBERT ON TWITTER AND FOUND DAILY AT MYFRIENDINFOOD.COM

CFL going with an innovative approach

Football. Board of governors' approval to make defensive pass interference reviewable ignites discussion

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

Glen Johnson, the CFL's vice-president of officiating, was all about the PowerPoint presentation Monday, as he met with the Lions' coaching staff and then members of the media to go over some of the league's new rule changes.

The subject garnering the most discussion was last week's approval by the board of governors to make defensive pass interference subject to a coach's challenge and video review.

It was a historical moment in football, as the CFL became the first league to make pass interference reviewable by coach's challenge.

Coaches can now challenge both called and potential defensive pass interference fouls, the league wrote in a statement. The penalty is not subject to review by the league's command centre.

"There's going to be growing pains and there will be things we'll have to re-learn," said Benevides. "But when you talk about a league having the courage to do that, and the officials to be on board with it, and the players, it's a great innovation."

Johnson has been going across the country on this tour to explain the rule changes to the teams. His stop in Surrey was his sixth of nine scheduled.

In March, the CFL Rules Committee tabled a proposal that would allow coaches to challenge defensive pass interference infractions.

"Some clubs brought the proposed change of reviewing every penalty. So we went through a process and said, 'If we were to start with one, where would we start?'" said Johnson.

"So we took the one that had the greatest impact in terms of yardage … as well we combined the data with the one penalty that we have the most difficulty getting correct and that's when pass interference sort of rose to the top of that."

Video review was first introduced in the CFL in 2006.

Johnson, who officiated 416 CFL games throughout his career, called the experience of overturning a call based on video review "harrowing."

"It's incredibly uncomfortable when your job is to go out and make a call and get it correct and there's a belief that you've got it correct," he said.

CFL coaches will be able to challenge both called and potential defensive pass interference fouls beginning this season. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

Caps going back to teenage goalie against Toronto FC

Talk about a vote of confidence.

Vancouver Whitecaps head coach Carl Robinson said Monday he will play 17-year-old goalkeeper Marco Carducci against Toronto FC in Wednesday's second leg of the Amway Canadian Championship semifinal at BC Place Stadium.

Carducci got the start in the first meeting between these two clubs — a 2-1 loss for the Whitecaps at BMO Field. World-class players Jermain Defoe and Michael Bradley scored for Toronto, which can advance to the Voyageurs Cup final with a win, or the greater aggregate of goals combined over the two matches.

"It will be a great opportunity for him as well, to get a second game under his belt," Robinson told reporters.

"He was super excited after the first game and he'd done very well and it's part of his learning curve as well."

Robinson went with a very young lineup last week in Toronto, opting to play three teenagers, including Marco Bustos and Kianz Froese, who aren't even signed to MLS contracts.

Kekuta Manneh's late goal in second-half stoppage time, which cut Toronto's lead in half, was critical for the Vancouver side. Now the opportunity is also there for the Whitecaps to advance, which may not have seemed possible when last week's lineup trotted onto the pitch.

"Toronto are probably still favourites … but we'll have a go," Robinson said.

Pacioretty, Price pack 1-2 punch for Habs

Max Pacioretty broke out of a scoring slump with a goal and an assist in the second period and Carey Price made 26 saves as the Montreal Canadiens downed the Boston Bruins 4-0 to force a seventh game in their Eastern Conference semifinal series on Monday night.

The series is tied 3-3 going into Game 7 on Wednesday night in Boston.

Pacioretty, who had only one assist in the first five games, scored and set up Thomas Vanek's goal in the second period. Lars Eller scored in the first for Montreal and Vanek added his second of the game into an empty net with 3:56 left in regulation time.

Rookie Nathan Beaulieu, the Canadiens' 2011 first-round draft pick who was given a surprise start by coach Michel Therrien, picked up an assist in his first NHL playoff game and was plus-2.

The Canadiens repeated the scenario of their 2011 first-round series against the Bruins, winning at home to force a Game 7. That year, they lost the decisive game in overtime. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ducks win third straight

Devante Smith-Pelly scored twice, John Gibson made 39 saves and the Anaheim Ducks held off the Los Angeles Kings for a 4-3 win Monday night to take a 3-2 lead in their Western Conference semifinal playoff series.

Stampeders 'outraged' over Price's tweets

The Calgary Stampeders say they are "outraged by the offensive comments" posted on wide receiver Maurice Price's Twitter account that appeared to disparage the sexual orientation of NFL draft pick Michael Sam.

"The comments are repugnant and in no way reflect the organization's views or values," the CFL club said in a statement late Monday. "The matter will now be dealt with internally."

A tweet removed from @MauricePrice17 within an hour of its initial posting said "My faith won't allow me to ACCEPT what took place over the weekend. Sorry. NOT sorry! #AdamandEve #NotAdamandAdam."

"And it's highly disturbing that under the current constitution individuals have been fined for verbalizing their thoughts," another tweet read.

Sam became the first openly gay football player selected in the NFL draft Saturday when the St. Louis Rams drafted him in the seventh round. ESPN and the NFL Network both included video of Sam kissing his male partner in celebration during their coverage of the draft.

Stampeders wide receiver Maurice Price GETTY IMAGES

A later tweet from Price's account, which was also removed, said "Of course my words get misconstrued. I wish Sam nothing but the best and hope he has a fantastic career. It's nothing personal against him."

The CFL fined Montreal Alouettes wide receiver Arland Bruce in February for urging Sam on social media to "submit fully to God."

Winnipeg Blue Bombers defensive tackle Bryant Turner Jr., was also fined then for a tweet saying "Michael Sam locker-room gonna come with complimentary robes."

In the NFL, Miami Dolphins safety Don Jones was fined an undisclosed amount and will undergo educational training after he tweeted "OMG" and "Horrible" shortly after Sam's name was announced Saturday. The tweets were taken down a short time later.

Jones apologized for his comments and described them as inappropriate. The Dolphins said Jones has been excused from all team activities until he completes training related to his comments.

Horoscopes

Aries
March 21 - April 20
You have started many new things in recent weeks but you will soon have to choose which one or two projects you are going to focus on. There's no point trying to do it all.

Taurus
April 21 - May 21
With the Sun moving through your birth sign you are eager to start something new. Don't wait for Lady Luck to drop opportunities into your lap — get out there and create them yourself.

Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Everyone has daydreams but the power of your imaginings could lead you in some unusual directions. Try to keep a grip on reality today, otherwise your mind could float away!

Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Work hard but leave yourself time for fun too. Friends will come by when you least expect it and you should be ready to drop what you are doing and make them feel welcome.

Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will be extraordinarily assertive on the work front, but you could also annoy people who think you are trying to usurp their position. You must stay on good terms with those in positions of power.

Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You will find that a number of questions you have been asking over the past few weeks will answer themselves. Whether or not the answers are to your liking, at least you will know what it all means.

Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Fears you thought had been put behind you will return in unexpected ways. However, if you face up to those fears and deal with them bravely the planets indicate this will be the very last time they bother you.

Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The next few days are mainly about relationships. Challenges must be dealt with and certain people must be told in no uncertain terms that you are the boss. Compromise is possible, but only after you establish your authority.

Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
If you need to make changes in your working environment now is the time. Some of your colleagues won't like what you do but that's too bad. Either they fit in with your plans or they move out.

Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
This is one of the best times of the year for you and you really should be making the most of it. Most things are possible, so set your sights high and make greatness your goal.

Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
A difference of opinion with a friend or family member could get out of hand, so promise yourself no matter what is said you won't overreact. Soon all will be forgotten.

Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Travel is on the cards but so are hold-ups and unexpected diversions. Wherever you end up you'll have a lot of fun, so don't stay home – get out into the world. SALLY BROMPTON
